... to hold an interview with him, but that I should like to know, by way of introduction, the processes by which he reached Utah and became one of the Latter-Saints.

"Why, bless your soul," said Mr. Hooper, "I came from Dorchester County. I was raised there by the Laconsta. The Eastern Shoremen are [illegible] as they can be, you know. Well, [illegible] was a poor boy, raised by a [illegible] more, and, instigated by the spirit of [illegible] pushed out to the West [illegible]. I was in Chicago, sir, when it [illegible] population [illegible]. I settled down at Galena, [illegible] and mother, good-hearted Irish people, and I sell me charcoal and butter. I remember the [illegible] they brought it in. I got there, sir, in November, 1835, and in July, 1838, I married Miss Harris, of Galena."

(At this place, Mr. Hooper was seized with a spasm of discretion, and, pulling his long beard away from his face so that he could look at me with his small burning eyes, he said: "Friend, I have never been in newspapers; I have always avoided it.")

"What steamers did you command on the Upper Mississippi, Captain?"

"I commanded several during the fifteen years I lived in Galena. First I went as clerk on the Otter, at $50 a month. I ran the Lynx for the American Fur Company. I commanded the Wa[illegible] Page from St. Louis to Fort Snelling. Other steamers that I ran were the Alexander Hamilton, the Time, and the Sarah Ann."

"Well, sir, I broke up in Illinois, and after clerking a while at the Planters' House, in St. Louis, I went to Salt Lake in 1850, with a load of goods [illegible]. In 1852, I married a Mormon girl, [illegible] of Cummingsville, near Cincinnati. When I got to Utah there were seven thousand people in the whole Territory. In 1859 I joined the Church and was baptized for the remission of sins."

"I am the third Delegate in Congress from Utah, and was elected to the United States Senate in 1862, and was not allowed to take my seat."

"Do you take slaves to Utah, Mr. Hooper?"

"Yes; I was allowed to take them there. They had been left to me and [illegible] anxious to have me keep them. Most of the leading Mormons were New England and New York men, opposed to slavery; but I was allowed to hold those negroes temporarily."

"Have the Mormons any patriotism, Mr. Hooper? Do they feel loyally toward the United States?"

"Why, sir! we claim to be the most American of all the American people."

"The Book of Mormon is a native American Bible. The Mormons' Land of Canaan was Mexico; what we call the Lamanites are the American Indians; our Jerusalem is not in Asia, but to be set up in the United States. We have no flag but the American flag; [illegible] five hundred Mormons—to fight in the Mexican War. [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Love to the flag? Why, sir! [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Captain, if the Mormons believe that their faith is never to perish, and if they are also loyal to the Government of the United States, what is the logical conclusion?"

"The reply to that leading question, my friend, is this: the Mormons expect to convert the whole population of the United States, and then, [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Mr. Hooper, there has been much said against the exclusive commercial principles of the Mormons and their [illegible]. Do you defend them?"

[illegible]

"Why, sir, the Mormons are a Christian people —the only Christians who obey the Divine injunction [illegible]"

[illegible]

"Why have you never taken more than one wife, Mr. Hooper?"

"Well, sir, that is between me and my God. [illegible]"

[illegible]

... said the Mormons [illegible]

Q. Who stands first among the Mormons?

A. Brigham Young; but he is not regarded with the reverence paid to the memory of Joseph Smith. The people all look upon Smith as a prophet, while Young is regarded as a greater administrative man, but not as possessing the gifts of Smith.

Q. Who stands second among the Mormons?

A. George A. Smith, the Church historian, and a native of Ogdensburgh, N. Y. He is 60 years old, very fat, and is a cousin of Joe Smith. He was a man of sandy complexion, but is now [illegible]. Smith is the successor of Heber Kimball in the important office of [illegible]. In other words, he is the Mormon Historical Society. He has gathered together a great library of scarce books, showing the origin, [illegible]

Q. Who is the third Mormon of consequence?

A. Daniel H. Wells, a native of Oneida County, N. Y. He is not wealthy, like Young, and is [illegible] the Mormon militia. [illegible]

Q. Who is the fourth Mormon in influence?

A. Orson Hyde. [illegible]

Q. What Mormon is the fifth in influence?

A. George Q. Cannon, a native of Liverpool, in England, 45 years old, the editor of the Deseret News, a fine preacher, and a man of more education than almost any other Latter Day Saint. He is a Mormon of the second generation, having learned his religion from his parents, who were Mormons from the Isle of Man.

Q. Is there opposition to Young among the Mormons?

A. Yes, there is always more or less opposition. Sidney Rigdon, who was one of the earliest converts of Joe Smith, fully expected to have succeeded Smith, as the Mormon President. He was an ambitious man, restless of holding a second place, who finally left the Church and is still said to be alive in the State of New York. He retains no practical status among the Mormons.

Q. Is there any other Mormon of consequence?

A. Yes, Orson Pratt, [illegible]

[illegible]

Q. How do the Pacific Railway Companies stand in regard to the Mormons?

[illegible]

Q. What writers on the Mormon settlement are most gratefully remembered by the Saints?

A. Hepworth Dixon is by far the favorite. Next comes Captain Burton, author of the "City of the Saints." Then, Gunnison and Stansbury, United States officers, who have written dispassionately about Utah; and, finally, Thomas L. Kane, the brother of Elisha Kent Kane, and Colonel of the Pennsylvania Bucktail regiment, whose descriptions of the burning of Nauvoo, &c., &c., are committed to memory by the Mormon school children.

Q. Do they think that polygamy is on the decline at Salt Lake?

A. Undoubtedly nine-tenths, at the present time, are not polygamists. [illegible]

[illegible]

Q. Are the Mormons much attached to Utah?

A. Yes; but their favorite spot is Jackson County, Missouri, whence they were driven to Nauvoo. They claim to possess the title at the present day of almost all the land in Jackson, Clay, and Caldwell Counties, and I am told that the settlers in these districts live uneasily above their titles, although the Mormons allege always that if the present settlers should be dispossessed they ought to be paid for their lands, because they bought them in good faith. They expect another second coming of Christ to happen in Jackson County, Missouri; and they are fond of contrasting the rich soil of that region with the inhospitable desert of Utah when they took possession of it. People err in supposing that all the American Mormons live in Utah. The settlement at Plano, Illinois, is a large one, and there are others in various parts of the country.

Q. What sort of land was the Utah valley when the Mormons commenced to occupy it?

A. It was almost entirely barren. In some places there were spots of gravelly soil; in others there were tracts of alkali whose saleratus and soda had to be soaked out by persistent irrigation. Nobody but the Mormons would have undertaken to reclaim so uninhabitable a region while there were so many better tracts to the east and west.

Q. Have the Mormons any curiosity about the Oneida Community, and other schools of polygamy and socialism throughout the country?

A. Not a bit. I have heard them denounce the Oneida Community as a godless association of sensualists, without any faith. [illegible] which have settled in the Mississippi Valley.

DREXEL AND KANKAKEE AVENUE BOULEVARDS.

Brief Description of the Plans now in the Office of the South Park Commissioners.

The South Park Commissioners have now in their office plans for Drexel Avenue and Kankakee Avenue Boulevards, which are to be constructed in connection with the South Parks. These plans have not yet been adopted, but it is not probable that any material modification will be made in them.

Kankakee Avenue Boulevard, as everybody knows by this time, will be two miles long and 200 feet wide. According to the plan, there will be a grand middle roadway or carriage drive sixty-five feet wide, shaded on both sides by trees. On each side of the carriage-drive will be a roadway forty feet wide, intended for ordinary traffic, and then another row of trees, shrubbery, &c. On one outer edge of the boulevard will be a bridle path for equestrians, and on the other a sidewalk for pedestrians. [illegible]

Drexel Avenue Boulevard will be a mile and a half long, and 200 feet wide. [illegible]

The above will give a general idea of what is intended so far. [illegible]
